Carlisle Construction Materials Introduces Sustainability Guide

(Carlisle, PA) – Carlisle Construction Materials (CCM), a leading manufacturer of commercial and residential building products, introduces a new Sustainable Construction Materials Guide. This guide features the extensive offering of sustainable products provided by the eight divisions of CCM, including Carlisle SynTec, Carlisle Residential, Carlisle Coatings and Waterproofing, Hardcast, Insulfoam, Hunter Panels, Versico and Premier Building Systems.

CCM provides a broad range of sustainable products to the commercial construction market. Through Carlisle SynTec and Versico, CCM offers TPO, EPDM and PVC membranes, as well as Roof Garden systems. Carlisle Coatings and Waterproofing manufactures a complete line of waterproofing and exterior protection products, and through its Hardcast division, provides duct accessories for Heating, Ventilation and Air Conditioning (HVAC) systems.

An extensive offering of insulation products is also available through Hunter Panels and Insulfoam, which manufacture polyisocyanurate insulation panels and expanded polystyrene (EPS) insulation products, respectively.

CCM serves the residential construction market through Carlisle Residential and Premier Building Systems. Carlisle Residential provides a complete line of premium tiles for steep-slope roofing applications as well as an extensive offering of window and door flashings, while Premier manufactures Structural Insulated Panels (SIPs) as an alternative to stick-frame construction.

With the production of this Sustainable Construction Guide, CCM proves its commitment to energy conservation, and provides contractors and building owners with a guide to the premium sustainable products in the construction industry.
